COLUMBUS, O., August 2.—The Grand Circuit meeting opened here to-day. The track was a trifle slow, on account of rain the previous night. The most sensational finish ever seen on the track was witnessed in the third heat of the 2:11 pace. There were nine-teen starters in this race. Billy C. won the first two heats. In the third heat there was a bad spill in the second quar-ter, and the drivers of both Billy C. and ter, and the drivers of both Micol B. were thrown. Billy C. stopped at the three-quarter post, but Nicol B. kept on with the field, running wild. In the stretch he followed behind Pear, Onward, and Castle. Just before reaching the wire the runaway passed in close to the wire the runnway passed in close to the rail, and while the spectators held their breath, expecting to see a smash-up, Micol H. poked his head under the wire, just ahead of Penri Onward, who won the heat. The runaway slowed up, and, tired at the first quarter, when he was

A LIVELY FIGHT. In Which a Whiskey Blockader Was

Wounded. WINSTON, N. C., August 2.-(Spe cial)-There was a lively sensation at Oak-Ridge church, Stokes county, about o'clock yesterday. The annual session of the Pilot Mountain Baptist Association had just closed, and the delegates and members of the congregation were leaving for their respective homes, when Mr. George Preddy, the new Deputy-Marshal for Stokes, arrested Jim Tay-lor, a celebrated whiskey blockader. The eputy had two officers with him, and hen he called upon the blockader to sur-ender Taylor rolled out of his buggy an instant and drew a pistol, which was well loaded. PARADE AND PUBLIC MEETINGS.

McKinley, Governor Wolcott, and Other High Officials-A Handsome Purse of Money,

WORCESTER, MASS., August 2.-Ned Ten Eyck, winner of the diamond sculls at Henley, accompanied by his father, James A. Ten Eyck, and the party from this city who went on to New York to meet him, arrived this evening, and was accorded a remarkable reception.

The party travelled from New York in a special car, and, reaching the station, found that half of the city had turned out to do honor to the young man. A crowd of at least 15,000 was at the depot to welcome the champion, and upon the Common, where the formal exercises were held, there were as many more.

First came a parade, headed by the consolidated bands, and the members of the Wachusett Boat Club, to which Ned Ten Eyck belongs. Then came Ned Ten Eyck in a carriage, with Mayor Sprague Next came the members Council and military organizations, President Winslow was presiding officer

BACK INTO THE FOLD. Leader of the Gold Faction in Georgia Repents.

(Atlanta Special in Washington Post.) Fleming G. du Bignon, who has led the cold faction of the Democratic party in this State for five years, and who made the race against the late Charles F. Crisp for the United States Senate, will no longer oppose the majority sentiment of his party. He is at present being urged for the governorship, and last night made a statement that has caused sensation among the politicians. He says in part: "The bolting Demowho are now making the most noise about the Chicago platform were the loudest in their commendation of the action of the minority, when, in 1892, is yielded its intense opposition to Mr. leveland and gave him the votes which elected him President. FRANCE MAY WANT HIM. W. A. Bellwood," Jeweller, Is Ba-lensi, Parisian-Lebaudy's Banker.

(New York Journal, 2d.) M. Guillaume Balensi, a Paris voluptuary of two years ago, is in the Tombs. Until yesterday he was not known by his Until yesterday he was not known by his Paris name, having been entered on the prison records as William A. Bellwood, of Philadelphia, charged with a $25,000 jewelry swindle. But he is the same man, according to his own story, who, by means of the Societie Francaise Banque et Change, lured Max Lebaudy, the "Sugar Bowl" of Paris, into many of the ruinous plunges that caused his death. Balensi is now a gaunt man, of 50, still full of nervous energy, and with the manner that just such a cosmopolite would be expected to have. When he speaks he uses a curious mixture of infections, part French, part English, and part Italian. The charm of his manner did not desert him when he entered the Tombs. He wants to be frank, and deplores the command of his lawyer, which checks the interesting revelation he says that he would like to make.

But M. Balensi admitted his identity before his lawyer, Frederick B. House, laid the prohibition upon his tongue, When Lebaudy died in hankruptey and misfortune at Paris, Balensi was his banker. In mines and miscellaneous securities Lobaudy had invested, through Balensi's company, upward of 3,69,600 francs. When the crash came less than 800,000 francs remained, and Balensi disappeared from Paris.

If Balensi was really at that time the Paris name, having been entered on the millionaire he was rated his fortune disappeared with scarcely less rapidity than that of the unfortunate Lebaudy. When he left Paris he was believed by the authorities to have less than $100,000. The relies of his magnificence—a house, sumptuously furnished, a stable that had been the talk of Paris, and a few securities of no value to a ficeing man—were left behind for the creditors. Where he went nobody knew, until his real identity was disclosed yesterday to the police of this city.

Balensi came to New York, but avoided Halensi came to New York, but avoided the French colony, and made no effort to find new sources of conquest, until the Paris outcry over his disappearance had subsided. Then he went to Philadelphia and opened a jewelry-store at No. 1322 Walnut street, under the name of William A. Bellwood. Mrs. Bellwood and a daughter 15 years old, appeared in Philadelphia with him. The store sprang into an apparently successful trade at once. It was not long, however, before Balensi fell into his old Parisian habit of playing the races, neglecting his hushness, and lost more money than he could stand. It was then that his American troubles began.

Increase of Wages.

(Bengal Government Report.) The number of professional dyers adda is fast diminishing. Anline dy and cheap European goods are killi The number of professional dyers in India is fast diminishing. Aniline dyes and cheap European goods are killing their trade. They are being compelled to turn their attention to new handicrafts, just as French competition and the vagaries of fashion caused the ribbon-makers of Coventry to seek a new livelihood in the manufacture of bicycles. Aniline dyes have made every man his own dyer. Formerly, the complicated processes by which indigenous dyes were prepared made the dyer a specialist.

Nowadays anybody can dissolve the chemical powders sent out from Europe and color his own clothes. The anilized yes are more brilliant, and, to the native, they have the superlative merit of cheapness. They are not so fast, and they lack the delicacy of color which, judging by the specimens annexed to the monograph, distinguish the Indian dyes, but their gaudiness makes them more popular, and so the fate of the native dyer is sealed. Slik dyeing, cotton dyeing, and carpet dyeing are all declining. The fault, it should be added, is to some extent due to the conservatism of the antive dyers themselves. They persistently adhere to their crude methods of preparing their dyes, and show a lamentable lack of lugenuity in preparing new designs.

At a meeting of the delegates appointed to represent Major Tyler's interests in the Roanoke convention, held last night in the old City Hall, Major J. W. Rawley was unanimously elected chairman, and several committees were arranged to make all the necessary arrangements.

It is probable that the Ellyson and Tyler delegates will leave together on Monday evening or Tuesday morning. Round-trip tickets will be sold over the Norfolk and Western railway for a single fare, 53.49, but if two hundred or more persons go from Richmond the fare will be reduced to $3.50.
